THE reticence and caution of the Democrats in Congress that have marked their conduct since December until quite recently had led to the hope that they were profiting by the experience of the extra session. It now looks, however, as if, Bourbon-like, they have learned nothing, but are about to re-enact the role of that unfortunate session. We welcome them to their fate.

MR. SINGLETON, who was the coparcener of that insane knave VANCE in the printing investigations of the Forty-fourth Congress, when the most despicable tricks and statements were resorted to to smirch the Congressional Printer, now admits before Congress and the country that he is not able to put his finger on a single dollar that he believes has been stolen from the Government in that office.

It did not need the determinate action of the Democrats on the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections in the KELLOGG-JOHN PORTER bill has challenged as much Spofford case, to satisfy the country of the admiration and praise from all sections of deep-seated spirit of desperation that has the country as any effort that has been fastened upon that party. There are plenty made in the Senate of the United States for of other proofs of that fact in the action of that party in both branches of Congress and throughout the country, but without any other collateral proofs this one act is sufficient to stamp that party with an utter disregard of equity or justice when a temporary advantage can be achieved by their sacrifice. There never has been in the entire centennial history of the American Congress so transparent a fraud or so great an outrage committed as is involved in the proposed action of the committee. It is deprayed and shameless in the extreme, under the most clearly established and best understood rightful equities of the case. The simple truth is that Senator Kellogg is foe. POLITICAL HATRED.

There is nothing like it, and nowhere does it become more inveterate than when it takes its seat among alienated partisans. No observer of the action of parties under an estrangement of their respective brotherhood can have failed to discover how bitter is that hatred which comes of a breaking up of the internal barmonies of party relation. The putative chairman, if our recollection is not at fault, was prominent in his allegiance to the Democratic cause in 1872, and has since abandoned it for the reason that it did not afford a premising field for political enterprise, and he has again allied himself to the Republican party, hoping, perhaps, to do it more harm from an inside relation than he could by open hostility. So far as known, the purposes of this organization are not to unify, strengthen and build up the Republican party in harmonious relation, but to embarrass it by placing a wheel within the wheel that can be operated for sinister ends. It is said that those who belong to this machine contend that they are anti-third termers, who only failed of controlling the Utica convention by a want of proper coucert of action, and who, because they failed in breaking the harmony of that body, now propose to try their hand upon the future
